

This was one tough ride! Leaving Collingwood a Thunderstorm sent us to one side of the Collingwood airport where we met another local rider who was trying to stay out of harms way. After 45mins we hit the road and the rest of the ride was against a strong head wind. When we hit the 350km Control being held at the 24hr donut shop, we found the donut shop officially closed and wouldn't be open until 6am. Silver blankets came out to warm up a few riders who found it successful by wearing the blankets as jersey's and were able to stay warm for the rest of the ride. Wish I had taken more pictures on this ride.
